

Roundtable on US-CHINA RELATIONS

with Dr. Wang Li,
Jilin University, China

Tuesday, February 28, 5:00-6:30 pm
Gallagher Business Building, 106

Dr. Wang Li is an expert on international relations, China's foreign & security policy, and Sino-U.S. relations. He is a professor at the School of International & Public Affairs at Jilin University in China and the author of United States Diplomacy: Ideas, Power and Order. This week, Dr. Wang returns to UM, where he earned his M.A. in History in 1994. In this roundtable, he will exchange views on US-China relations with UM faculty who study China and international relations.

- Wang Li, Jilin University, "A Chinese Perspective on Sino-US Relations"
- Steven Levine, History, "The Historical Context of Sino-American Relations"
- Karen Ruth Adams, Political Science, "Welcome to Sino-American Bipolarity"
- Terry Weidner, Political Science, "President Trump and the Balance of Power in the Pacific"
- Eric Schluessel, History & Political Science, "Track Two Diplomacy and the NGO sector"
- Peter Koehn, Political Science, "Why China Will Trump the US: Climate Change Mitigation"

